

AJ Williams: Digital Editor/Columnist for the Michigan Chronicle and former Relationship & Dating columnist for FRONTPAGE Detroit. She's a local media personality who has worked with Mason Radio on 107.5 FM, as host of The MIXX TV Show with UDetroit and as producer of the "The LovEXperience Series for ARCH Executives. Under her personal brand "I AM AJ Williams" she's a motivational speaker, relationship expert, emcee and freelance writer.

AJ is the Creator and Blogger-in-Chief at SingleBlackChick.com and RebelSoulChick.com that are women's lifestyle and inspirational websites. Through these platforms AJ shares her candid take on relationships, life, love and spiritual wellness using her life as a platform to empowering women to embrace their skin, sexuality, soul, and personal journey.

AJ has always had a passion for empowering women, especially the portrayal of women in media. From this passion AJ started her media production company. 444Media Group was inspired by her biggest inspiration, her grandmother. 444Media Group's mission is to produce innovative content that engages, empowers and starts a conversation with a specialized focus on positive images of women in media.

Before her current endeavors in media, she pursued a career in finance as a personal investment banker. She has served with several non-profit organization which includes, The Young Bankers Club and Chairperson for the UFSC Urban Bankers Annual Scholarship Gala. AJ currently serves on the American Heart Association's Young Professionals board as Communications Chair. Her achievements have been recognized by the Michigan FrontPAGE as an FP Thirty Honoree, which highlights rising young professionals under 40 and as an Honoree in Who's Who of Black Detroit.

A DPS Pershing High School graduate, Williams pursued a Bachelor Degree from the University of Michigan and received her Broadcasting/Radio accreditation with Specs Howard School of Media Arts. She is currently attending Rochester College to master Mass Communications. In addition, she is completing a debut book and email series.